

Your match, findable by shooters who don't know you yet.

Club schedules live in forum threads, Facebook posts and PDFs from three seasons ago. This is one page that lists them all — filterable by state and by what it's shot with. Airgun, rimfire, centerfire and shotgun together.

1 List your match

Dates, venue, disciplines, entry details and a registration link.

Every submission is reviewed by hand, so nothing junk appears beside your club's name.

Takes about two minutes.

2 Score it live

Hand each squad's scorer a code. They tap hit or miss on their own phone; standings build as the match runs.

Works with no signal — saves to the phone and sends when the connection returns.

3 Post the results

Paste your finishing order straight out of a spreadsheet, or publish from live scoring in one click.

Competitors can find their placing afterwards, and results feed a national ranking by finishing place.

No signal at your range? That's the normal case.

Scorers open the page once while they have a bar of signal. After that every tap is saved on the phone and sent automatically when the connection comes back. Close the browser, lose signal all day — nothing is lost.

What it costs you

Nothing. There is no paid tier and no plan for one.

No account to create — yours or your shooters'. An approved event gets a code by email, and that's the key to everything.

Your contact details are never shown publicly and never shared.

What it doesn't change

Keep running your match exactly as you do now.

Already use PractiScore for registration? Keep it — put the link in your listing.

This is a calendar, not a registration system. It exists to make you findable, not to replace anything that already works for you.
